Introduction Welcome to TICAL2020!

TICAL brings together decision makers, network specialists, researchers, academics and members of the main Latin American networks and research organizations, universities, partner institutions around the world, as well as industry representatives, to promote the development of education, science and innovation in the regional academic scene. All this through the construction of a cooperative scenario to promote and disseminate the development of new technologies and best practices in the current educational environment.

TICAL, the perfect ICT environment for your company, is the meeting point between your products, services, ideas and target market: ICT directors of Latin American universities.

Due to the pandemic caused by COVID-19, in 2020 the TICAL Conference will be held online for the first time in its history, and registration will be free.
